Arthur: We don't really know each other, but we have been at functions together since our children, Ellen and Ben, are in second grade together at Cooper. While I'm still at Enron(one of the few), I am diligently developing future opportunities for myself in the wake of the unfortunate events at Enron. Since I can't help but read great things about your company, I thought I would send you a short note to determine if Lexicon might have any interest in someone with a strong government/regulatory affairs background. While I'm assessing a few offers at the moment, they are out of Texas and would require relocation. My desire is to stay here. While I have'nt been doing my line of work in your industry, I'm a quick study; I'm good at what I do; my style at Enron was very different from the reputation of the company(low key, but effective); and the idea of learning a new industry and applying my skills in a new setting is quite appealing. I know Lexicon has constant interaction with varrious facets of government, but I don't fully know how you currently staff those needs and whether someone with my background could be of use...Thus my note. Below are various ways to contact me if there is any interest. Thanks for taking the time to consider this note and Happy Holidays...Rick Shapiro
