Internet Tip of the Day

Wednesday November 22, 2000

Air Traffic Control System Command Center

The Internet has been the biggest boon to travelers since the invention of the suitcase. Lots of people use it to find the cheapest air fares and room rates, or to plan itineraries. Used to be it was hard to find out if a flight was delayed. Now it's as easy as a click with the FAA Air Traffic Control System Command Center's Real-time Airport Status Page. That's a long name for a handy site that gives your real-time delay information for major US airports. There's also a handy glossary of air traffic control terms. Bookmark it now so you won't have to search for it when you need it.
