The idea was to rank no more than 5 using 1-5 with 1 being the most important to you.

Hi Rita:

Not sure if I did this right. Was the idea to rank no more than 5, using 1-5, or more the way I did it. Just let me know.

Best,
Jeff

I wanted to be sure that everyone had the opportunity to give their input if interested! If you haven't already responded, below is a list of potential/existing information resources and we invite you to identify your top five priorities (1=high). Responses should be directed to Rita Hartfield by tomorrow, October 18th.

Thanks!
Elizabeth

Ginger - Please forward to Gov't Affairs group. Thanks!

We're trying to identify information needs - both specific and general. Many of these are already provided, and response to this survey will help in identifying new services and prioritizing/improving existing offerings. Depending on the response to each offering, most will likely be made available. For this effort, please rank up to five choices in the list below (1=highest). We'll tally the results, identify which items will have priority and communicate back how those needs will direct implementation efforts. Please note that items marked with (*) would require your input. Please click on Forward for this message to allow you to type in your ranking numbers, and send the response to Rita Hartfield by Wednesday, October 17.

Thanks!
Elizabeth
