

Hi Aleck: How did your talk go? I hope well. If you're refering to the PX study on whether to have an "as-bid" or "single-price" auction, the PX is in the preliminary stages of having a report prepared. What they've done is assemble a "Blue Ribbon" panel of economists (as reported in the press accounts you've seen) to examine the issue and report back. I'm not aware of a report having yet been completed by the panel and submitted to the PX. Have you heard differently? I'll poke around.

Best,
Jeff