Sara,

Good morning.

Just wanted to see where are we on the below language. London office is wanting all confirmation with Brent TDT out ASAP. I told them I can't do anything until I get the go from you. I am holding trades from June. Please let me know.

Thanks,

Sheetal Patel@ECT

Sara,

Below is the most recent language I have received from the London office referencing the Market Wire correctly.

Thanks,
Sheetal

Matt/Susan,

Below is the common and float pricing language I have been asking about. I need an okay from a trader and legal perspective before putting this language in our confirms. If you notice, the most recent language is in red.

Thanks,
Sheetal

Floating Price:

The mean of the arithmetic average of the daily high and low quotations for Dated Brent under the heading 'Platt's Crude Oil Marketwire: Brent (DTD)' as reported in Platt's Crude Oil Marketwire minus the average of the daily settlement prices for the prompt month of the IPE Brent Crude Oil Futures Contract for each Commodity Business Day/Trading Day for the applicable Determination Period, with the exception of the last Commodity Business Day/Trading Day of the prompt month on which day the settlement price for the Second Nearby Month will be used. The calculation should include only the days when both the IPE is open and Platts publish their dated Brent assessment.

Common Pricing:

Pricing to be effective only on the days when both the IPE is open and Platts publish their dated Brent assessment.
