

Enron's protest of the AL, despite its limited nature, held up the approval as would be expected. It also got the attention of those at the Commission who want a piece of everything, as you should have also expected. As a result, we were told that the only way to sell it was to file an 851 explaining what we had already explained in the AL., because that is what the bureaucracy demands. As I spoke with you earlier about, the protest would be the death knell. Although we have transferred the site to a third party under license, we now have to wait for the Commission to bless it. Enron knows how state Commission's work as evidenced by its purchase and now future sale of PGE. The problem is, your intervention hasn't done much for the spirit of cooperation internally.....

what gives? i have not seen a decision from the commission on the energy marketplace advice letter. yet you've filed something new saying you will file an 851? why?

and thanks again for giving us time at yesterday's meeting. shame the group can't come up with a compromise.
